

Platanus occidentalis—Sycamore, is the largest tree of the state and the largest deciduous tree in the United States. Indiana had the distinction of having the largest living sycamore in the United States, which was located near Worthington, Indiana. In 1915, the tree measured 43 feet and 3 inches in circumference at five feet above the ground.